Shri K Annamalai, spoke on “Your First Step into a Thousand Possibilities” He gave a deeply thought provoking and inspiring talk. He said today we have lots of choices in all aspects of our lives, so we have to narrow down our choices otherwise it will lead to choice driven paralysis. He urged the students not to resist change but to embrace it. He gave some beautiful examples from history to show how change is bound to happen and we have to accept changes. He highlighted that every innovation was met with resistance initially but later the same innovations have proved to be a blessing. He also spoke about how the world is interdependent and explained the complex supply chain existing today. He gave an example of Apple iPhone whose component are from various countries and assembled in India as well. He expressed his wish that PSGiTech students in future would manufacture some components that would reach billions of consumers. Shri Annamalai encouraged students to read books of different languages so that they can learn about different cultures and different perspectives. He also traced the growth of India across various sectors and compared the past and the present and outlined where India stands in future.

After his talk there was a Q & A session, with Jai Adarsh and Vaishnavi asking the questions. The Q & A session was very interesting and Shri Annamalai answered all the questions with patience and great insight.
